

A grain-crushing machine comprises a housing, inside which a hammer rotor is mounted, a crushing chamber and loading and unloading pipes. The hammer rotor consists of a shaft, on which a pulley and a reel are secured. The crushing chamber has two inlet openings, top and bottom ribbed working surfaces, two replacement sieves, a rear working wall and a cover with a working surface, two outlet openings with discharge nozzles.