

A purse with alarm consists of a case, having compartments for banknotes and coins separated with partitions and closed with a common classic flap with a button. In the flap pockets are made for credit and bank cards, and a transparent pocket for placing therein of photograph or useful information on a material medium. The purse is equipped with an additional autonomous transmitter and an autonomous receiver of radiosignals, the last is with the owner always, for example in the pocket or in the form of a decoration (badge, pendant, brooch), it is capable of automatically receiving the radiosignals from the purse transmitter at distancing of the last on particular length from the transmitter and communicating to the owner about this by an audio signal, for which purpose the signal receiver is equipped with a speaker.