

Fabric elastic preform for sewing women's clothes, containing the basic elastic and non-elastic threads connected with a system of transverse weft non-elastic threads, and the number of elastic threads, laid at building rapport of the fabric with the pre-set width is equal to 200-300, and the distribution of elastic threads is asymmetric by width of the fabric so as to form at least three conventional fragments, the first of which is equal to 10-12 cm, with 150 ... 160 elastic threads therein, the other fragment at the other edge of the repeat is 25-30 cm and does not contain elastic threads, and the middle part between the end fragments comprises elastic threads, which are distributed with a uniform decrease in their number in every 8 ... 10 cm of fabric width at a total fabric width of 100 cm.