

A method for application of metallized pellets for the converter process involves the preparation of briquettes of metal shot, filled with staurolite mixture. At that the briquettes are produced from the metallized pellets, preliminary filled with the converter slag.