

Press for briquetting of granular materials contain mounted on the frame driven pressing rollers with formative eyes on removable components that are planted on the rollers, the loading device located over the rollers, and the seating surfaces of the drive of pressing rollers and components with the forming eyes are made in the form of mutually inverse cones.