

The table game contains the set of the game elements and the means for accounting the game scores for each player. The set of the game elements contains at least two sets of the chips, at least two generators of the random numbers, and at least one set of the game cards. The front surface of the card contains the letters and/or figures and/or symbols filling the fields "Name of the card", "Description of the card", "Type of the card".