

The method of electrochemical concentration alkaline solutions carries a device containing two electrodes separated by a diaphragm with an inert material. As the diaphragm using cation exchange membrane, and concentrated in the cathode chamber solution of alkali concentration is 5-40 times higher compared to the original alkali solution supplied to the anode chamber.